CAST OFF ON HONEYMOON. TWO DAYS APTER MARRIAGE DR. WIX FORSOOK MRS. WIX.

Being at Sea on the St. Paul He Couldn't Compictely Abandon Her, but Did His Best-Says It Was After a Confession From Her Both Want to Be Free She Isa Syracusan. Emma L. Wix moved before Justice Bischoff in the Supreme Court yesierday for alimony and counsel fee in an action for a separation on the grounds of orusity and abandonment against George B. Wix, a physician practising in this city. Philadelphia and Pittaburg. She was the widow of Dr. John J. Moore, a physician of Syracuse, with two children and some means when she narried Wix. a widower, with one son on April 23 last. Dr. Wix also has an action pending against her to annul the marriage for alleged fraudulent representations as to her prior con-

After their marriage in Syracuse they went to the Walderf-Astoria in this city and on April 26 they sailed on the St. Paul. She said:

The very first day of our outward voyage, I was astonished and surprised to find that the defendant's conduct, which had theretofore een that of a gentleman and an ardent lover, had completely changed toward me, and the defendent suddenly evinced a strange rejuctance to associate with me, although to please him, and out of love and affection for him, I had attired myself, as I thought, in the most

him, and out of love and affection for him, had attired myself, as I thought, in the most becoming manner possible."

She avers further that the defendant refused to tak to her, to promenade the decks with her or to accompany her to meals, so that it caused goesp among the passengers. His indifference kept increasing, and she says when she asked him what the cause was he told her, on April 27, that he did not love her. She went to her cabin and cried bitterly but he took no notice of hand do not try to assuage her grief. When she asked him that night how it was going to end, asked him that night how it was going to end, asked him that night how it was going to end, asked him that night how it was soing it of the contempt to the took on notice of her and cried bitterly but he took no notice of her and do what was right and give her a divorce. She returned that it was a divorce. She returned that it was a divorce. She returned that it was a divorce on their honeymoon. The rest of the voyage, she says, he was a complete stranger to her. He accused her, after their arrival at Southampton, of filriting with two men aboard, an accusation. The survey of all kinds of dogs and horses. She declares that he then left her at the American Line pier and that she has not since seen him Her counsel, Nathaniel Cohen of Howe & Hummel, asked that a liberal allowance be made, saying that Dr. Wix has an income of $30,000 a year.

Dr. Wix says that he met the Widow Moore when he went on a professional visit last January to Syracuse to see Dr. John Van Rensselaer, a tenant of hers. He was at once impressed with her manner and appearance, and he says further:

a tenant of hers. He was at once impressed with her manner and appearance, and he says further:

"She was the widow of a prominent physician and was living in a style indicating affluence, and was a person of dignity and respectability. Within a month I promised to marry her. She urged an early marriage and the date of the same was set for April 23."

About a week before the marriage he received an anonymous letter which in effect said that since the death of Dr. Moore in 1897 she had maintained in Syracuse one Harry Ward, who was considerably younger than she, and that it was generally known that she was his mistress and was supporting him. Dr. Wix says he sent the letter to Mrs. Moore from this city with a request for an explanation and she sent a letter back saying the statements were untrue. A half hour before their marriage he received another letter of the same purport, but having implicit faith in her he went on with the marriage and said nothing about the second letter. On the steamer he spoke of the second letter and she then acknowleded that she had maintained meretricious relations with Ward for more than two years. She said that what she had done in the past did not concern him, as she would conduct herself properly in the future.

Dr. Wix says the confession caused a revulsion of feeling toward her and had he not been on the ocean he would have left her immediately. He wanted to send her back on her arrival here, he avers, in pursuance of his intention to disclaim her as his wife, he rejused to permit her to accompany him in this country from the stamer.

Dr. Wix's counsel, M. S. Guiterman, said that his client's means had been greatly exaggerated by the plaintiff and that she should not have allmony as she has as much means as the light of the court reserved decision.

TEST OF AUTOMATIC BRAKES. State Railroad Commissioners' Report on th

ferits of Different Appliances. ALBANY, July 28. The State Board of Railroad Commissioners to-day issued a report on the official test which it has made of automatic brakes for street surface railroad cars to take the place of the old hand brakes with which a majority of the cars operated in this State are now supplied. In its report the board

The board has devoted much time to this that will revolutionize the manner of stopping a car, the opportunity is afforded to present o the railway officers and to the public facts and figures showing what the best appliances known to-day can do in the matter of stopping a car quickly. While these results are very atisfactory, there is still room for much improvement, and the board feels that its action in holding a public test will result in still furher improvements in brakes or in new inven-lops which will reduce the distance within a nothing a public test will result in still further improvements in brakes or in new inventions which will reduce the distance within which a car can now be stopped, and it has the satisfaction of knowing that it has done all in its power to bring about the adoption of better brakes than those now used by the majority of roads in this State, and thus reduce the number of accidents.

"After curefully considering the various points in each system and adding to or taking from the mechanical standing of the different brakes, as given in the report of the electrical superts, the board gives the several brakes of following final standing in the order of their respective ment: The Electric Selector and Signal Company, the Sterling Supply and Manufacturing Company, the Sterling Supply and Manufacturing Company, the G. P. Magann Ar Brake Company, the J. G. Brill Company, the Sauvage Street Car Brake Company, the Standard Air Brake Company, the Columbia Car Light and Brake Company, Price, Darling & Co., the Safety Appliance Company, Bach & Schlegal.

A Co., the Safety Appliance Company, Barting & Schlegal.

It is not the intention of the board to recommend any particular brake for any class of service, leaving the selection to the judgment of the railroad officers themselves. The board will, of course, exercise fully its power under the law to require of the companies the use of sufficient and safe equipment for the public service. After a careful consideration of the whole subject of brakes for electric cars, the board has determined that, except in special cases where the liability of accident is very remote, the ordinary single chain and spindle hand brakes, now generally used should be replaced by brakes made by one of the following manufacturers, or any other which, in the Judgment of the board, is hereafter shown to be equally efficient:

"All brakes—the G. P. Magann Air Brake Company, the Standard Air Brake Company, the Christensen Engineering Company, J. E. Reyburn Electric Brakes—the Electric Selector and Signal Company, the General Electric Company; friction brakes—the Peckham Motor Truck and Wheel Company, the J. G. HYDROPHOBIA ON HIS MIND. Dr. Haley Dies in Bellevne Thinking He Had

It-Friend Says Nonsense. Dr. John Haley, a veterinary surgeon of 21 East Third street, died last night in Bellevue Hospital where he had been under treatment for Hospital where he had been under treatment for hydrophobia. Dr. Haley had an office in the stable in East Third street which is kept by a man named Cummiskey. He had been with Mr. Cummiskey for about fifteen ears. On Sunday the doctor was in the stable alone. He called up Bellevue Hospital on the telephone and told the man at the other end of the wire that an ambulance was wanted at 21 East Thire, street at once. Then he sat down, highten a cigar and waited for the ambulance. When it arrived the surgeon found Dr. Haley in the stable making faces at himself.

"Well, what in thunder's the matter with you?
Stop making those faces."
"Shi" said the doctor, nutting his finger up in warning, fashion. "I've got hydrophobia. Bitten by a dog two months ago. Just beginning to feel it. Take me to the hospital quick."
The surgeon hustled the doctor into the ambulance and ordered the cirver to get to the hospital as fast as he could. The driver made the tr'p on the jump. Dr. Haley was put to bed and after a good meal went sound asleep and didn't wake up until 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Whatever was the matter with the doctor, he was very much worse when he woke up. He made even more hideous faces than before, and began to supp and bark. Apparently it was a clear case of hydrophobia. In a calm moment the doctor explained that he had been bitten by a pet doc that had been intrusted to his care early in May. He had cauterized the wound, he said, and hadn't thought any more about it. The usuel treatment for the disease

NEWPORT, R. I. July 24—The ships of the North Atlantic Squadron left Newport at 10 o'clock this morning, passing outside in the following order: Flagship New York, battle-ships Kentucky, Indiana, Massachusetta, Texas and Kearsarge. On arriving off shore the squadron was put through a series of evolutions and about noon needed to the westward. The itinerary of the course is: Leave Newport on July 28, arrive at Gardiner's Bay and New London on July 28; leave New London on July 31, arrive at Portland, Me., on Aug. 2; leave Portland on Aug. 8, arrive at Rockiand on Aug. 8; leaves Rockiand on Aug. 11, arrive at Bath on Aug. 11; leave Bath on Aug. 14 for Bar Harbor, where the squadron will stay until it salls for Newport, arriving off here Sept. 15 and remaining until Sept. 30.

Before returning to Newport the Kearsarge will go to Portsmouth in August to receive the bronze shield that the State of New Hampshire is to present the ship. It is also likely that the Indiana will be ordered to the League Island Navy Yard to go out of commission. Others of the squadron may go to the Aslatic squadron.

BLIND TO SEW ANY MORE. Sent the Children Away With a Penny to Buy

Less to Feed by Hanging Herself-"I'd Only Be a Burden, It's Better If I Die," She Said. Everybody in the tenement at 36 Ludlow street who knew the Kopsecker family knew that Mrs. Kopsecker hadn't long to live. They said that it was a pity for Abraham to lose so good a wife, and that the two children would have nobody to car tor them after she was gone. Nobody pitied Mrs. Kopsecker particularly because of her impending death. It would be a mercy to her to have it all over with. For many months she had tottered in and out of her rooms, looking after the children as best she could and taking in what sewing she could get to buy clothes for them. It was very little that she could make; sometimes fifteen cents a day, sometimes only eight or ten; but what there was went for the needs of eight-year-old Benny and six-year-old Sarah. Abraham, the husband, worked hard, but could make only just enough to keep the house on.

There came a time when Mrs. Kopsecker found her eyes getting very dim over the sewing. Stitches went wrong and some of the clothes came back to her for correction with the threat that if her work didn't improve there would be no more opportunity for her to bungle. Then she went to the free dispensary to find out from the doctors there what was the is no time for putting frills on the bare facts of life.

"Ob, yes, I know," said Mrs. Kopsecker, wearly. "The known that for a long time. But it's my eyes, now. I can't sew."

"No: I should think you couldn't," said the doctor, after a look at her eyes. "You'll be blind if you try to sew much more: that is, if the consumption doesn't carry you off first."

The woman stood very quiet for a moment while the physician looked at her narrowly. He wondered whe'her she was going to shriek or faint; if either, he hoped the latter. It created far less disturbance. She didn't do either.

"My poor children," she said softly and went away. It surprised the doctor for a moment, but dispensary physicians don't have time for even such a mild emotion as surprise and he had forgotten it in the next case before she was out of the door. When she got home she was very weak and tired and Mrs. Meyer of the floor above helped her upstairs.

"The doctor-says I can't see to sew any more," she said to the helping neighbor. "And Abraham can't make enough for us to live on and take care of the children. Would you look after them a little after I am gone, Mrs. Meyer.

"You mustn't get discouraged," said Mrs. Meyer. "Maybe some easier work will come to you, and if you be careful you may live a long while yet."

after them a little after I am gone, Mrs. Meyer.

"You mustn't get discouraged," said Mrs. Meyer. "Maybe some easier work will come to you, and if you be careful you may live a long while yet."

But Mrs. Kopsecker shook her head.

"Don't think it," she said. "I'd only be a burden. It's better if I die."

In the little rooms of the family the two children were playing. From under a corner of the mattress on her bed the mother got out a rag in which were tied up a few small coins. She took out a penny and gave it to Benny.

"Take this and go to the corner and buy a stick of candy for sister and yourself," she said. "Come and kiss me before you go."

Benny didn't care much about the kissing part of it; he was too elated over the penny. The children trotted out hand in hand with great rejoicings. Half an hour later Mrs. Meyer and some of the other neighbors came after them and led them back to the rooms. Their mother was lying on the bed, dead. One of the neighbors had just cut her down from the doorway, where she had hanged herself to the transom with a piece of rope. When Abraham came back he tore his beard and wept loudly over the virtues of his dead wife. The two children sat on the bed in a state of mystification that couldn't destroy the satisfaction they were deriving from their evenly divided stick of candy.

SUICIDE OF ARRAY D. RROWER.

Congressman Voorhis Shoots Himself. HACKENSACK, N. J., July 28 .- Abram D. Brower, aged 66 years, of 369 Union street, committed suicide this morning at 8 o'clock by firing a bullet into his right temple. He arose as usual and went to breakfast ne went upstairs, but soon returned and, kissing his wife said: "Don't fret, dear." He then waiked from the dining room and in a few minutes a shot was heard upstairs.

Mr. Brower was found lying on the bathroom floor, dead. He had been in a depressed mental condition for a long time, but was not supposed to be in a state indicated by his act. The family had made arrangements to go to Orange posed to be in a state indicated by his act. The family had made arrangements to go to Orange county, N. Y. on Wednesday, a married daughter to accompany them.

Mr. Brower was cashier of the Pirst National Bank of Hacken-ack and treasurer of the Large City law office, about three years ago, and that occurrence is supposed to have been what led to Mr. Brower's mental state. He had not been in business for a long time, but had a competence. He leaves a wife and one son, Charles W., who is teller of the Hackensack Bank, and one married daughter.

MURDER OF A BOY.

His Body Found in a Reservoir Had Reen

Walking Home to the Evening. WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 23 .- The police are investigating the murder of Ludwig Lashoky, a twelve-year-old boy of Wanamie. He disappeared on Saturday night while walking from Glen Lyon to Wanamie, and his body was found last evening in an old reservoir, half a mile from the road. His clothes were on the bank, and it was at first believed he had gone in swimming and had been drowned. A further investigation revealed the fact that taking off his clothes was a deception of the persons who murdered him. There were numerous cuts and bruises on his body, as if he had had a severe struggle. His watch and some pocket money were gone, and his clothes were torn and crumpled. The police believe that the bot was stinned and thrown into the reservoir where he drowned.

The boy had seent Saturday with his grandparents at Gien Lyon, and left in the evening to walk to his home in Wanamie about three miles away. The road was not lonely and he feared nothing. It is not at all probable that he left it and walked half a mile to the lonely reservoir for a swim. The authorities believe that he was enticed or carried from the road by some tramps, who wanted his watch and money. A search is being made for them, but as yet there is no clue. appeared on Saturday night while walking
